Born.
 HOLLINGER.—At Kapiolani Park, November 17, 1899, to the wife of T. Hollinger, a son.

The Healan.

The Healanis elected the following officers at their meeting last evening: George R. Carter, president; Walter E. Wall, vice-president; Jas. W. Lloyd, secretary; Chas. B. Gray, treasurer; Kirk Porter, auditor; who with F. B. Damon, A. L. C. Atkinson, Guy Gere and F. J. Church constitute the full board of directors. The club is in a very excellent financial condition, having discharged its heavy liabilities and yet retaining a respectable balance on hand.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Does anyone really care what form of government is awarded to us, so long as our sugar stock maintains a high figure and cheap asiatic or imported alien labor is secured to us?

If the political local-American Journals would only write something of use and benefit to Hawaii during the congressional discussion, instead of quarrelling over dead issue and incompetent correspondents, how much better it would be.

What congress would like to know is to which national party will Hawaii affiliate, if the opportunity of affiliation is given. Unless a pronounced sentiment is expressed by our local leaders both parties will put us down as "mug wumps" and deservedly dump us into salt river.

Senator Marcus A. Hanna, the political father of President McKinley, announces that the Republican slogan for 1900 will be "full dinner buckets, protection, an unchanged currency and expansion," as against "the empty dinner bucket policy, free trade, a debased currency and anti-expansion."

One is pleased to learn that, as we anticipated, the Washington authorities will probably do the right thing in connection with our land laws. Believing our federal superiors to be honest in their intention, as our Judges, it only requires a proper presentation of all cases in dispute for us to obtain verdicts fraught with even and equal justice.

Minister of Finance Lansing, as might have been expected from his past career, has declined to allow the financial bulls to recklessly pasture in the rich Treasury paddocks. That the people's money can only be expended by the people's legislature is one of the soundest axioms of a people's government. As we can apparently afford it, it may be wise to expend all that the legislature has said we may expend upon public improvements. But then we have Brother Rowell to deal with, and Minister Young will find him as tough a nut to crack as did his predecessor.

Had the P. G., or Republican, Legislatures in Hawaii been more honest in action instead of being guided so greatly by the interests of the money makers, many of "the bequests of the old regime" might ere this time have been blotted from our Statute books. Take the penal clause of the labor contract Laws for instance. A deliberate promise was made of its repeal, to catch annexation votes abroad, but how was that promise kept? None will welcome the advent of American reform more heartily than those who conscientiously opposed the methods adopted by the Dole compact to obtain annexation.

According to such staid and staunch, Republican papers as the Argonaut and Call the re-election of Phelan as Mayor of San Francisco portends the certainty of his election, in course of time, as governor of California and subsequently as United States Senator. This is only right for Mr. Phelan, although a Democrat, has proved his capacity to hold office honestly, he is a man of wealth and above all things a California born boy. His opponent Horace Davis is one of the most estimable of men, and Republicans, but he is unlucky in politics, and the Republicans, unless much changed of recent years, do not rustle like the Democrats in municipal elections. They are too conservative and only show, their knuckles when necessity calls for their display.

The children's matinee at the Opera House last evening was a great success, and the management of the Lyrics is to be congratulated on an innovation which will benefit the young people and we trust, will also prove a financial success to the company. It was well worth watching the happy faces of the nicely dressed and well behaved little ones—
